

Summer School in Textual Criticism

June 29th – July 9th

University of Ferrara

Department of Humanities

The Department of Humanities at the University of Ferrara offers an intensive 2-week summer school in textual criticism. The course is aimed at both graduate and PhD students in diverse disciplines who would like to improve and deepen their knowledge in the field of Textual Criticism, with particular attention to more recent developments. The basics and current theories will be covered in the first week. A further week will be spent applying the knowledge acquired to particular aspects of Textual Criticism, both in modern and classical languages.

Among the programme teachers you will find Roberto Rosselli del Turco (University of Pisa), Francesco Stella (University of Siena), Paolo Tanganelli and Paolo Trovato (University of Ferrara).
