Thesis: "L'importanza dell'Archeomalacologia negli studi acheologici. Analisi della collezione malacologica marina aurignaziana della Grotta di Fumane come esempio di caso studio"
Summary: in my work of thesis I examined the very discussed topic of origins of the symbolic mind, which is of great interest in the Prehistoric researches. In particular, I focused on the analysis of the malacological collection from the archaeological site of Fumane Cave, which allowed to identify several aspects on the use of shells by early European Homo sapiens. Shells were used to obtain ornaments, used to decorate themselves and moreover to create their own cultural-symbolic identity
